

NLCU

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

November 20, 2018

NLCU Scholarship Program Awards Three Scholarship Recipients

(St. John's, NL): Last week Newfoundland and Labrador Credit Union (NLCU) awarded three scholarships to recent high school graduates in the province as part of the 2018 NLCU Scholarship Program. Annually, NLCU takes pride in recognizing the contributions of graduating high school students, and the outstanding work they do in their schools and communities.

Each year NLCU receives applications from remarkable students from various high schools across the province who show tremendous community involvement with an outstanding academic ability.

"With so many submissions it is clear to see the sense of community and importance to education that our schools and teachers cultivate throughout their communities," says Glenn Bolger, COO. "By helping fund the next chapter of their education, we hope to encourage qualities of good citizenship, academic success and personal development for youth across the province."

All applicants must be: a member of NLCU, or a child of a member; be a graduate from the general academic program of provincial high school, be nominated by their principal, and be enrolled in an accredited postsecondary institution.

"NLCU recognizes that the growth and future of our province lies in our youth. By helping to build a bright future for the young people of our province, in turn we are ensuring a successful future for all Newfoundland and Labradorians," says Bolger.

The three scholarships are designed to reward students who are making recognizable community and academic achievements. Emily Garlie of Mount Pearl received The Outstanding School and Community Involvement Scholarship. Garrett Holloway of Portland was rewarded the Outstanding School and Community Involvement Scholarship in Memory of Owen Grimes (a previous NLCU Board Member), and Jayme Humber of Corner Brook, was awarded the Brian F. McDonald Scholarship.

For more information on our scholarship program, please visit nlcu.com.

-30-

Media Contact:

Mr. Shannon Goodyear
Director, Marketing and Communications
(709) 758-8217
sgoodyear@nlcu.com