NLCU Scholarship Program Awards Three Scholarship Recipients

(St. John's, NL): Last week Newfoundland and Labrador Credit Union (NLCU) awarded three scholarships to recent high school graduates in the province as part of the 2015 NLCU Scholarship Program. Annually, NLCU recognizes the contribution of graduating high school students, and the work they do in the communities by awarding three deserving students with scholarships valued at $3,000 each.

Each year NLCU receives countless applications from outstanding students from various high schools across the province with extensive community involvement, and an outstanding academic proficiency. All applicant's must be; a member of NLCU, or child of a member, be a graduate from the general academic program of provincial high school, be nominated by their principal, and be enrolled in an accredited post-secondary university.

"With over 45 submissions it is clear to see the sense of community and importance to education that our schools and teachers cultivate throughout their communities," says Glenn Bolger, COO. "By helping fund the next chapter of their education, we hope to encourage these qualities of good citizenship and co-operation well into the future.

The three scholarships are designed to reward students who are making recognizable community and academic achievements. Zachary Nash of McCallum received The Outstanding School and Community Involvement Scholarship. Erin Ball of Botwood was rewarded the Outstanding School and Community Involvement Scholarship in Memory of Owen Grimes (a previous NLCU Board Member), and Cassandra Chislett of Mount Pearl, was awarded the Brian F. McDonald Scholarship.

"NLCU recognizes that the growth and future of our province lies in our youth. By helping to build a bright future for the young people of our province, in turn we are ensuring a successful future for all Newfoundland and Labradorians," says Bolger.
